CERTAS ENERGY TECHNICAL SERVICES

CUSTOMER

Beldam Crossley are a UK based company who has a solid track record of providing industrial sealing technology to industries where quality is paramount, including aerospace, marine, automotive and construction.

They are recognised as being at the leading edge of industrial technology through continued dedication to development and investment in high tech specialist manufacturing facilities.

REQUIREMENTS

A review of current working practices, training and increased awareness of the risks of working with metalworking fluids and the requirements of the HSE.

CERTAS ENERGY LUBRICANTS SOLUTION

Our technical manager and application specialists visited the customer to conduct a formal training session on working safely with metalworking fluids. This was then followed by a hands demonstration of the key fluid monitoring tests on each cnc machine.

Attendees were awarded with a certificate at the end of training, and were encouraged to ask questions throughout.

RESULTS

- Increased employee awareness of the risks associated with exposure to metalworking fluids.
- A greater understanding of the composition of metalworking fluids and the need to maintain fluid parameters to ensure safety and quality.
- A definitive list of recommended tests, fluid monitoring equipment and a demonstration of how to use them.
- A record of training that can be used as evidence for the HSE.
- A full implementation of a fluid condition monitoring programme

WHAT OUR CUSTOMER SAYS:

It was a pleasure working with Matt and Steve whilst assessing our needs and then implementing training with regards to metalworking fluid. Their knowledgeable, professional but also personable approach when attending site, ensured the training provided was well received by all who attended. I would definitely recommend Certas energy lubricants to anybody in a similar situation, when looking to implement or enhance their own fluid control regime. We are a company who are experiencing growth and the advice and support particularly around CNC machining and metalworking fluid testing that Certas energy lubricants provided, has set us on the right path hopefully ensure we continue working with them for many years to come.
